

OUTLINES.

Attorneys Delmas and McPike of Harry Thaw's counsel, are at Birmingham, N. Y., on a visit to Superintendent of the State asylum for the insane, and it is rumored in New York that their visit is to have Thaw taken there for trial, presumably on a lunacy commission; this is denied, however, and District Attorney Jerome says he will not consent to a removal of the trial from New York.—W. O. Douglass, who had been in the employ of the Trust Company of America, in New York, has been arrested on the charge of stealing from the company; a large amount of the bonds were found in a broker's room and he probably will be arrested.—Benedict Gimbel, the Philadelphia millionaire who was arrested in New York a few days ago on the charge of embezzling a boy and with a subsequent attempt to bribe policemen who arrested him, died yesterday in a hotel at Hoboken, N. J., where he cut his throat and wrists with glass after he had been released on bail.—An interesting complaint was filed in Washington yesterday with the Interstate Commerce Commission against the Utah Railway Company for conspiring with the asphalt trust to keep a competitor out of certain territory into which the opposition company was charged a higher freight rate than the trust paid.—In London last night several thousand skilled workmen discharged from the Woolwich arsenal marched to the House of Parliament and made a pitiful plea to be retained in the government employ, but it was explained to them that the military expenses necessarily have to be cut down.—A portion of the Copper Ridge tunnel of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, near Knoxville, caved in yesterday and smothered a fire which started Sunday when a collision occurred in the tunnel between two freight trains.—Miss Mabel Pendleton and Stuart Gay, the youth who died with her when she jumped from the bridge at Clifton Forge, Va., were buried side by side yesterday.—Secretary Taft and party reached Washington last night after an absence of nearly a month in Panama, Cuba and Porto Rico.—President Roosevelt will leave Washington July 12th for his summer sojourn at Oyster Bay.

Mr. George Perkins and his sister, Mrs. Shell, were instantly killed and Mrs. Shell's 14-year-old daughter badly injured yesterday by being run over by a train on the Seaboard Air Line near Petersburg.

New York markets: Money on call, easy, 1 3/4 to 2 3/4 per cent, ruling rate, 2 3/4, closing bid, 1 8/4, closing bid, 2; spot cotton, steady, 11 1/2; flour, steady, with a better inquiry; wheat, easy, No. 2 red, 83 1/4 elevator; corn, steady, No. 2, 57 1/2 elevator; oats, steady, mixed, 47 1/2; turpentine and rosin, firm.

It is mighty hard for a man with the antecedents and recorded utterances of President Roosevelt to have to chime in in some sort of fashion with the peace conference people.

Editor Harvey, of Harper's Weekly, makes a noise like a man who would put up considerable opposition if the degree team were to attempt to initiate him in President Roosevelt's Ananias Club.

We observe that a contemporary is giving "Advice to Lawyers." The paper's advice is free, of course, but if the paper needs any "advice" from the lawyers it will have to be paid for. That is the difference between advice and "advice."

The reason some other Republican politicians do not get rash like Ex-Congressman Wadsworth and call President Roosevelt "a fakir and a humbug," they have not yet reached the point where they realize that they will never cut any more ice in politics in red hot times like these.

Recorder Shannonhouse, of the Recorder's Court of Mecklenburg county, says that if that court had the jurisdiction given the proposed recorder's court of New Hanover, it would save Mecklenburg county over five thousand dollars.

A Kentuckian is trying to make people believe that he recently saw a sea serpent in the air. It seems that even the air is not safe for a Kentuckian who seeks to seclude himself in space in order to avoid the possibility of being run over by the water wagon.

Col. Bryan still sticks to it that Col. Roosevelt stole the clothes of the Democracy. That's no excuse, however, for Col. Bryan to be caught fumbling around in the discarded duds of Populism to get a few things to keep the Democracy from having on no more clothes than a three days old jaybird.

A Philadelphia writes to a newspaper to inquire: "What can married men do to keep their wives from catching up with everything their husbands do?" That Philadelphia seems to have had his ingenuity exhausted and in that respect he is no better off than married men in Wilmington.

HANDY WITH GUNS

Negro Kills Another and A Third Wounds A Fourth in Sunday Engagements.

THE KILLING ACCIDENTAL

Solomon Brooks Enraged Because Neighbor Tied Horse in His Front Yard—Words Led to Pistol Bullet in Thigh.

Two shooting affairs, one of which resulted fatally, occurred among negroes in the First ward Sunday morning and afternoon within a few hours of each other. Between 8 and 9 o'clock Sunday morning Tom Hampton, colored, shot and painfully wounded Solomon Brooks, a well-to-do colored man, through the thigh, on Bladen, between Fifth and Sixth streets, and between 1 and 2 o'clock in the afternoon, in Schutte's alley, between Eighth and Ninth and Bladen and Harnett streets, at the house of a colored woman to which both are said to have been paying attention, Joe Henry, colored, shot and almost instantly killed Maxey Groom, colored. In the latter case a coroner's inquest resulted in the discharge of Henry on the ground that the shooting was accidental.

The shooting affair between Hampton and Brooks grew out of some words that passed between the two men over Hampton's having tied a horse and buggy in the front yard of Brooks. The latter awoke and found the horse tethered in his yard. He pulled on his trousers and going to his door he commanded Hampton to take the rig in his own yard. Hampton said he wouldn't do it and Brooks told him that was all right, he'd make him take it out and went back in his house. When he did come back, Hampton had moved the turnout but was present to palaver about it. Brooks was standing on his front porch and had started down the steps when Hampton pulled an Iver Johnson pistol and fired into his adversary. The bullet passed through his left thigh and he was able to be in court yesterday, Hampton having been arrested by Officer C. G. Jones, who lives in the vicinity. He was represented at the trial by Herbert McClammy, Esq., who waived examination for his client and allowed him to be bound over in $100 bond, which he gave by depositing the cash.

The killing of Groom by the negro Henry in Schutte's alley was with a single barreled breech-loading shotgun, the load from which took effect in the left side of the man's neck, carrying a part of the shoulder away. He died almost instantly, but true to the instincts of the criminal of his race to shield one another from the law, he said before he died that the shooting was accidental. It was stated that the men quarrelled over a plug of tobacco during the afternoon and that each was jealous of the other over the woman of the house, but none of these facts could be developed at an inquest held by the coroner Sunday evening at 6 o'clock, Henry having given himself up; also to Officer C. G. Jones. Two women in the house testified most emphatically that it was purely accidental; that the men were projecting with the gun and it went off accidentally. The negro's body was turned over to Alex Davis, the colored undertaker, for burial, and Henry was discharged from custody. Both are young negroes and work together at the cotton seed oil mill. It is said that they were the best of friends, but the other rumors of jealousy and the quarrel about the tobacco would not down. The dying declaration of Groom, however, was sufficient to exonerate Henry.

Fannie Johnson and Sallie Wood, the colored women at whose house the killing occurred, were arrested by the police on a charge of vagrancy. They employed Brooke G. Empey, Esq., to defend them and when the case was called yesterday at noon in the Mayor's court, the defendants asked and were granted a continuance until today on account of the sickness of their attorney.

COLONIAL DAMES' EVENTS

Unveiling Cornelius Harnett Monument and Annual Pilgrimage to Ruins of St. Philip's Church at Old Brunswick.

The North Carolina Society of the Colonial Dames of America is preparing for two most interesting events in this city early during the coming month of May. The first will be the ceremonies of the unveiling of its handsome monument to Cornelius Harnett and other Colonial heroes at the intersection of Fourth and Market streets on the afternoon of Thursday, the second of May, and the other will be the annual pilgrimage of the Society and its friends to the historic ruins of old St. Philip's Church, on the Cape Fear River at Old Brunswick. Handsomely engraved invitations to both affairs were mailed during the past week and interest in these events will be State wide. A number of visitors from all parts of North Carolina are expected here to participate in the exercises.

The ceremonies attending the unveiling of the Harnett monument will take place at half past 4 o'clock on Thursday afternoon and the pilgrimage to St. Philip's will be on the following day, leaving the city in the morning and returning in the afternoon, most probably on the steamer Wilmington. The address this year will be by Mr. Julius Davis, of the Wilmington bar, who is well qualified to speak upon any subject touching the earlier history of the Cape Fear section and its people. There will be the usual basket dinner on the ground with music and services in the ruins of the old church, which have in great measure been restored by the Dames in recent years.

Further announcement as to both the pilgrimage and the unveiling exercises is expected within the next few days. Mrs. James Sprunt is president of the North Carolina Society of Colonial Dames and the arrangements are being made from this city.

THE WILLIAMS MEETINGS.

Large Gathering in Academy of Music Sunday Afternoon—Others.

The series of meetings to be conducted here during the coming week and perhaps longer by Mr. Bradford O. Williams, of New York, begun most auspiciously Sunday afternoon with the great mass meeting of men in the Academy of Music. There were fully six hundred present and the greatest interest was manifested. Mr. Charles Dushan, general secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., under the auspices of which the meetings are being held, presided and Mr. Williams spoke with great force and power in the subject "The Two Destinies." Rev. R. W. Hogue opened with an invocation; Rev. N. M. Watson read a scripture lesson, and Rev. C. W. Kegley made the closing prayer. The music was by the Grace S. S. Orchestra, the Acme Male Quartette and a male choir of 25 voices led by Mr. Alex S. Holden. The meeting was a great one and the same may be said of the service at night at the First Baptist Church, where the services will be continued throughout the week.

This afternoon at 4 o'clock there will be a meeting especially for ladies; tomorrow afternoon at the same hour, one for boys. The night services of all will be held as usual at 8 o'clock, with a song service preceding. Wednesday Evangelist Williams will make a new departure for Wilmington. Special permission has been obtained for a service to be held in the A. C. L. shops at the noon hour. The men will be at leisure at that hour, and it is hoped to interest them in the great meeting in progress. The services will be held right in the shop building. Mr. Williams has a strong command of language and his presentation of the gospel truth is compelling. He should be heard during the series of services here.

Justice Bornemann's Court.

Yesterday morning at 10 o'clock Justice Bornemann tried John Exum, colored, who was locked up Saturday for vagrancy. The evidence was that Exum's wife was in a dying condition and that he would not do anything to support her. He was found guilty and fined $10 and costs, in default of which he was sent to the roads for 30 days. After he had finished the case the justice headed a subscription for purchasing medicine and food for the man's sick wife.

David Shepard, the negro who was found in Mrs. Humphrey's bed room a week ago and was fined $10 and costs by Justice Bornemann, came before the justice yesterday morning and withdrew the appeal which he took from the justice's decision and this employer will pay the fine and costs.

Fire Yesterday Morning.

Fire of unknown origin at 3 o'clock yesterday morning damaged the store and stock of groceries at corner of Fourth and Queen streets to the extent of about $1,000. The building, a combination store and dwelling, is owned by Mr. Joe Sneed, and the stock of goods was the property of Mr. J. C. Vereen, who suffered practically a complete loss, the fire having started in that part of the building. Mr. Vereen carried $700 insurance on the stock and Mr. Sneed had insurance on the $300 damage to the building. The department responded to an alarm from box 49, Fifth and Castle streets, but the flames had gathered considerable headway when the firemen arrived.

THE RECORDER'S COURT.
Mr. Shannonhouse, of Charlotte, Thanks it a Good Thing.
Recorder F. M. Shannonhouse, of Charlotte, in reply to an inquiry as to the working of a Recorder's Court in his city and Mecklenburg county, where the conditions are somewhat similar to those in New Hanover, says:

"Our court only has magistrates' jurisdiction, not jurisdiction of all petty misdemeanors as the court for your county, Asheville and some other towns have, and instead of decreasing expenses, has increased expenses of the county, because it has done more business and bound more cases over to Superior Court—that is misdemeanors beyond the jurisdiction of a magistrate.

"The revenue derived from the court is three-fold what it formerly was, both to city in way of costs and excess over costs to county school fund.

"With the jurisdiction your court has, if the officer filling the position of Recorder desires to, it certainly ought to curtail expenses of your Superior Court in trying misdemeanors, save jail fees and save great loss of time on the part of parties and witnesses attending Superior Court.

"I feel sure such a court would save this county at least $5,000 per year."

It will be of interest to know as giving weight to what Mr. Shannonhouse says, that the recent overwhelming triumph of the Business Men's Municipal League in the primary in Charlotte means that Mr. Shannonhouse is to be returned to the office of recorder in his city, even with the limited jurisdiction he has, and the result at the polls was a vindication of Mr. Shannonhouse and the court in the Queen City.

Back from Successful Tow.
The tug Alexander Jones arrived in the harbor yesterday afternoon from New York whither she went to tow the schooner Laura L. Sprague, previously reported in distress here. The tow was very successful and it is understood that the Jones will leave again at once for a tow from Jacksonville, Fla., to New York. Capt. Sanders was in charge for the towboat owners on the trip to New York just completed.

Announcement is made of the forthcoming marriage to Mr. Edson Cohen Ruark, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Ruark, of Southport, and Miss Mary Kennedy Bell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Bell, of Wilmington. The ceremony will be performed tomorrow in this city, the groom being one of the popular young employees of the Atlantic Coast Line.

HOMICIDE IN WAKE

STATE CAPITAL NEWS NOTES

Governor Detained By Burned Trestle. Railroads Ante Up For Not Bulle-tining Trains—Sensational Sermon Preached.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Raleigh, N. C., April 22.—Rowden D. Black, a young farmer 16 years of age, was lodged in jail this morning for mortally wounding Marshall Rowland, aged 18 years, near McCullers, this county, a station on the Raleigh & Southport Railroad. The young man shot is a son of Bennett Rowland, a prosperous and well known farmer. Black, who did the shooting, came to the neighborhood from Moore county some months ago.

Sunday evening he met a younger brother of Rowland, and asked him if he could not get him some whiskey. The boy, who was twelve years of age, replied that he did not know where there was any. Black insisted that he could, and a quarrel ensued in which Black slapped the Rowland boy. Marshall Rowland, the older brother, heard of the attack on his brother and came up to take his part, when Black, who was standing on top of a freight car, drew his revolver and fired upon him. One ball entered the boy's mouth and came out at the ear, and another took effect in the back, ranging down close by the spine, bringing about almost total paralysis. Black claims that he shot in self-defense, but a number of witnesses say that the youth who was shot had only remonstrated with Black in a very quiet way about striking his little brother and demanded an explanation.

Governor Glenn was to have returned to the city this morning from his trip to Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and Richmond, but he telegraphed Mrs. Glenn this morning that he could not get back until tonight, owing to the burning of a bridge on the Seaboard Air Line between Burgess and Dismal, beyond Norfolk. He said he would return over the Southern by Danville. The bridge burned last night. It was a long bridge across a swamp.

The North Carolina Corporation paid into the State Treasury this morning $1,000 in penalties collected from the Seaboard Air Line and the Southern Railway companies in suits for failure to properly bulletin trains.

There were a number of violations of the order consolidated into one case, each for the two roads. Lumberton, Gastonia, Greensboro and Raleigh were the principal points where the violations were charged. The suits were in Wake Superior Court.

Rev. J. C. Massee, pastor at Tabernacle Baptist Church, took for the subject to a prelude to his Sunday night sermon, the recent killing of Scruggs, the Guilford county convict, by Guard L. C. Eatman at the penitentiary last week, while he and two other prisoners were attempting to escape from the stockade. He denounced the killing as inhuman and criminal in the highest degree, and declared that the guard should have been taken from the stockade and hung. Officials of the penitentiary resent the attack and declare that if Eatman had failed to shoot, they would have discharged him promptly. In fact, one guard who was posted nearer to the escaping prisoners than Eatman was, did fail to shoot, claiming that his gun was not loaded, and he was promptly discharged. The contention of the prison management is that if the guards were not required to shoot convicts when they attempt to escape it would be impossible to control the prisoners or keep them in prison at all.

A charter is issued for the Bank of Elizabethtown, Bladen county; capital $2,000 by J. M. Clark, C. C. Lyon and others.

Another charter is for the North Carolina and Virginia Steamboat Company, of Washington, N. C., capital $125,000, by A. W. Styrone, George Dillard and others, to operate vessels in Pamlico and Albemarle Sounds, Neuse Pamlico and Tar rivers, and along the coast of North Carolina and Virginia.

Wake Superior Court began a three weeks' sitting here today, with Judge E. B. Jones, of Winston, presiding. Seven divorce cases were disposed of during the morning. The first case on the docket for tomorrow is Mrs. M. L. Latta, against the Carolina Insurance Company, of Wilmington, involving a small fire loss.

BUTLER RULES THE ROOST.

The fear harbored by some of the old line Republicans that former United States Senator Marion Butler would rule the Republican roost in North Carolina is evidently nearing realization. The Sampson county man who formerly stood at the head of Populism in the State is quite likely to be the head and front of Republicanism, if he is not already it. He spends most of his time in Washington, is right next to the throne, and as he is a slick worker, that is where he has the advantage of the leading Republicans who remain in the State. That Butler has a pull, and a strong one, at Washington, has been made apparent on various and sundry occasions, and no one need be surprised that he is, or will be, the oracle to be consulted about Republican party affairs in North Carolina. That is probably the cause of a reported coolness between him and former Judge Adams, now Republican State Chairman—probably in name only. Mr. Andrew Joyner, the well known Greensboro correspondent, keeps his eye on Republican headquarters at Greensboro, and he throws some light on the matter in some things he picks up occasionally, if not often. This is what he sent from Greensboro on Saturday:

"It is a subject of remark here that Marion Butler, who has been here ever since Thursday night, has not been with State Chairman Adams a single time. On the contrary, Butler Tyre Glenn and Blackburn's former private secretary, Mr. John Crouch, have been openly, even ostentatiously in conference. The construction put upon all this by those here who have time to construe things, is that there is no doubt about the accuracy of the report that Adams and Butler are at loggerheads; that so much more deep is the dislike of Glenn and Crouch for Adams to that they have for Butler, they are delighted now to fan the flame between them. It will be remembered that last year the chief objection urged by Congressman Blackburn, Messrs. Crouch and Glenn and the strongest card they played against Adams' election as State Chairman and to the Industrial News, was that both were not only influenced, but were dominated by Butler. Now Mr. Butler is all in all, and he has not so much as spoken to Judge Adams, preferring to commune with his old-time enemies. Politics and politicians are curious commodities, at best, but Greensboro Republican politics and politicians are beyond any sort of doubt, beyond all powers of description in any vocabulary of any language under the sun. The funniest part of the whole gossip is that Butler has concluded to cut out Adams, and if so he has chosen some very keen weapons. Judge Adams' friends claim that when Butler arrived here he was in no condition to talk, either business or statesmanship, and finding this to be the fact, the State chairman retired in disgust."

The above indicates that the Republican row in North Carolina has not been settled, but is liable to break out in a new spot with Butler as the centre of the spot.

TAFT AND HUGHES.

The Star long ago predicted upon the trend of affairs political that the probabilities were that Secretary of War W. H. Taft, of Ohio, and Governor Charles E. Hughes, of New York, would be the Republican nominees for President and Vice President in 1908. It has been plain all along that Taft was the logical man of the Roosevelt administration for first place on the ticket, and New York's position in politics and the election of a governor of the Hughes stripe pointed to him as next best man. Late Washington dispatches show that things are drifting that way, and no one need be surprised next year to realize that Taft and Hughes are the men against whom the Democratic party will have to make a fight to gain the administration of the affairs of the Republic. A dispatch showing the drift that way was sent out from Washington on Saturday and it is interesting as showing how political opinion at the National capital is centering upon Taft and Hughes, as the strongest probabilities from the Roosevelt point of view. The dispatch is as follows:

"Taft and Hughes. That is the ticket which appeals to the majority of the administration followers, and they point out the fact that the preliminary campaign practically is concentrated in the two States of Ohio and New York. In each State the President has been attacked personally, and in each State he has the right to ask for vindication through the endorsement of a candidate in sympathy with his point of view on governmental matters. The idea of coupling the Secretary of War with the governor of New York has proved a popular one. Experienced politicians say it would be about as strong a combination as could be imagined. Each of the two men would bring force to the ticket and do it, too, in a State more or less uncertain, according to ordinary political standards. It should not be understood, of course, that President Roosevelt is behind this ticket, but the names of Taft and Hughes are grouped together so often by people who are in the confidence of the President as to give the impression that the ticket would meet his approval to an extraordinary degree."

The Republican field will be against the Taft and Hughes combination in next year's Republican National Convention, but the Star is rather inclined to predict that the field will get licked. It may turn out, however, that such a strong fight will be made against Taft that he may miss the nomination. In that event lightning might strike Hughes as the conspicuous object to top off the head of the ticket.

WILL ROOSEVELT STICK TO IT?

The Baltimore Sun in a recent editorial says:

"President Roosevelt, in his letter to Representative Sherman, published during the controversy with Mr. E. H. Harriman, referred to Moyer and Hayward, now awaiting trial in Idaho on a charge of murdering ex-Governor Steffenberg, as 'undesirable citizens.' This characterization offended the representatives of labor, and the Chicago Federation of Labor sent protests to the President. No answer came. Then a telegram was sent to the White House calling for an explanation, but still there was no reply. Now the federation decides to send a special messenger to ask President Roosevelt whether he did really venture to describe Moyer and Hayward as 'undesirable citizens.' The President cannot deny using the expression, as it was in the correspondence which he himself gave out; but will he attempt to qualify or explain it. Will he back down or will he stick to his epithet. If he sticks to what he is alleged to have said, will not his expression 'undesirable citizens' be held to prejudice the prisoners' chance of getting justice in Idaho? It looks as if the President would have difficulty in making a satisfactory explanation."

This looks like going to Washington to beard the lion in his den. The Federation of Miners appears to be hard to shake. They are determined to get an answer from the President one way or another, and he will have to box the compass with some sort of an explanation or refuse to see them. They are going to place the President on record one way or other, and if he remains silent they will consider that the record is against him.

One cannot help admiring New York civilization. Letters received from Mr. C. C. Moore, who is touring the State for the purpose of organizing cotton warehouses, for the storage of cotton, signify that his efforts are everywhere being rewarded with success. Mayor McNinch is getting a lot of free advertising over his recent endorsement of the position taken by Editor Graves, of the Atlanta Georgian, favoring the endorsement, by the Democratic party, of President Roosevelt for re-election. The Mayor has a perfect right to favor the Czar of Russia, the Sultan of Sulu, or the present occupant of the Presidential chair. But the Mayor has no right to participate in a Democratic convention and then vote for a candidate not chosen by its majority. Such action, if taken by many, would mean the disintegration of the party and the beginning of a reign of political anarchy.—Charlotte News.

IT IS SERIOUS.

Some People Fail to Realize the Seriousness.

The constant aching of a bad back. The weariness, the tired feeling. The pains and aches of kidney ill. Are serious—if neglected.

Dangerous urinary troubles follow. A Wilmington citizen shows you how to avoid them.

J. E. Bloodworth, formerly residing at 30 South Front street and employed at 123 Princess street, Wilmington, N. C. says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they have proven to be a valuable remedy and I believe, I am safe in recommending them. My back and kidneys have given me great trouble. I thought I had rheumatism. I had shooting pains through my back and sides which often made me yell right out. If I stood, sat or lay down or kept in any position for any length of time it was almost impossible for me to move on account of the great pain. I heard some one speak of Doan's Kidney Pills and sent down to Bellamy's drug store and got a box. They completely removed the pains. They are without doubt a valuable remedy for backache."

YOUR HAT

May Be a Stylish One, But It Makes Trouble.

A man usually buys a hat that's "in style," but the modern hat for men has lots to answer for.

Baldheads are growing more numerous every day. Hats make excellent breeding places for the parasitic germs which sap the life from the roots of the hair.

When your hair begins to fall out and your scalp is full of dandruff, it is a sure sign that these countless germs are busy at work.

There is but one way to overcome the trouble and kill the germs—that way is to apply Newbro's Herpicide to the scalp—it will kill the germs and healthy hair is sure to result.

SAMPSON COUNTY WAS DESPOILED

Nasty Mess for Which Republican Officials are Responsible—Defaulting Sheriff Doctored His Books—Forgery and Other Corruption.

(Raleigh News and Observer.)

Clinton, N. C., April 20.—One of the first acts of the reconstituted Board of Commissioners for Sampson county was to appoint a committee to investigate the financial condition of the county. This committee has only been at work a few days and has already discovered in the accounts of settlements made by the former Republican Board with Aman, the sheriff, fraudulent entries amounting to about $2,300, occurring from 1903 to 1905, by which the county would have suffered the loss of said amount which will now be added to the heavy debt of obligations already incurred by bondsmen of the defaulting sheriff. Further investigations will be made and the incompetence and mismanagement of the Republican party leaders made public and other suits may follow.

It will be remembered that the members of the Republican boards of commissioners of the county are already under indictment in the Superior Court, and the sheriff a fugitive from justice.

The charges of the Democrats in the last campaign against these officials and their counsellors and leaders was that the Republicans mismanaged the county funds and extravagantly wasted them; but now it seems that corruption and forgery must be added to the charge of incompetence. This is simply the logical result of the elevation to office of incompetent and unfit men and the policy of running the finances of a county for political purposes.

The Republican leaders have had absolute control of all the finances of the county for many years. They have had the profits, and cannot escape the responsibility. Before the Legislature they acknowledged that the finances of the county were, to use the euphonious phrase of one of their leaders, in a "nasty mess," and had the cheek to write personal letters to Democratic members urging them to defeat the bill for new commissioners because it would not be Democratic policy.

The new Board of Commissioners under control of its Democratic majority have begun their Spring cleaning, and have made a good beginning by discovering the fraud and corruption which prevailed in 1903 and 1905-06 and which would have remained covered up if the Democrats had not unearthed it.

The bondsmen of Aman have already had to raise some fifteen thousand dollars, and the examining committee have ascertained that Aman was also due the county about thirty-one thousand dollars besides, for the general and special county funds; so that the bondsmen will probably be liable for a very large additional amount. It is very significant that when the bondsmen realized somewhat of their condition they selected Mr. Turlington, a Democrat, to collect the remainder of 1906 taxes, taking the tax book from their own newly elected sheriff in doing so. It was not surprising that the radical leaders should have strenuously fought against the enactment of the bill providing for additional and Democratic Commissioners for Sampson. There has been something doing amongst those leaders ever since it became evident that the light would be turned on. In the light of recent revelations the pamphlet issued by Major Butler during the last campaign glorifying the financial ability and magnificent financial achievements of the Republican party of Sampson makes mighty interesting reading. The bondsmen are for the most part farmers and not many can meet their loss without being seriously crippled thereby. Some of them feel that the incompetence and indifference of their former Board of Commissioners gave Aman, the sheriff, the opportunity to defraud the county, and that the Board should be held responsible for the loss, since it is found that they have never had a full settlement with the sheriff during all the years of their administration and did not know the condition of the county's finances at any time. The members of the Democratic majority of the newly constituted Board are recognized as capable business men who will probe deep and turn on the lights. By their action thus far the taxpayers are already $2,300 to the good, enough to pay the per diem of the new members for years; and under the influence of their appointment the funds belonging to the schools have been secured by the bondsmen without suit, and the collection of delinquent taxes is being vigorously prosecuted.

TO SQUEEZE PEANUT MARKET.

Chicago Firm Engineering Plan to Get Corner on World's Supply.

Chicago, Ill., April 20.—A corner in peanuts is the result of the latest manoeuvre of the market manipulators. N. A. Coble & Co., a South Water street commission firm, are engineering the corner. Associated with this firm, which is one of the largest peanut wholesale dealers in the country, are three Norfolk, Va., firms.

Not only will the combine have the upper hand on the situation as far as the American product is concerned, but it will control the output of Spain and Japan. It is the intention of the combination to buy up the entire available supply, and then force the price up to the highest possible point. For several days the Coble representatives at Norfolk in conjunction with three firms at that place, have been buying everything in sight. Within a few days it is expected that their control of the market will be complete.

A NOVEL ATTRACTION.

Noted Lecturer and Traveller Proceeding Over Land Here.Something new and novel is offered to patrons of the Academy of Music Thursday night in the appearance of the well known lecturer and traveller, Eli Smith. The lecturer comes to Wilmington overland from Newbern
by a conveyance drawn by a pack of trained wolves secured by Mr. Smith in the great Northwest during his extensive travels. The man with the novel means of locomotion will reach the city probably today, and will remain here until Thursday night, when the lecture will be given. The appearance of Mr. Smith and his wolves on the streets will no doubt attract the popular interest that will fill the Academy to overflowing to hear him
tell of his experiences Thursday evening. Further announcement as to the lecture will be made upon the arrival of Mr. Smith, who concluded his engagement with Messrs. Cowan Brothers by telegraph last night.

Burglaries at Bowden.

The police Sunday night were asked
to look out for two strangers, white,
suspected of burglary at Bowden, N.
C. The telegrams were from Messrs.
V. B. Britton, of Warsaw, and J. M.
Loflin, from Bowden. A request was made for a Wilmington police officer to be sent to assist the local authorities but later this order was countermanded with a statement that the supposed burglars had gone North.

MR. WILLIAM K. BELL DEAD.

Venerable and Highly Esteemed Citizen Passed Away Last Night.Mr. William K. Bell, one of Wilmington's most venerable and highly respected citizens, for 47 years in the continuous service of the Atlantic Coast Line in this city as a machinist, passed away yesterday evening at 6:30 o'clock at his home, No. 610
South Fifth street, after an illness
with heart trouble only since last Wednesday. The news of his death will come with sorrow to a very great many friends in this city, for Mr. Bell was well known, and everybody was his friend. While his condition for some time has been such as to give grave concern to members of his family and friends, the death last night was rather sudden. He was able to sit up during the evening, and Mrs.
Bell had just carried his supper to his room and the two had eaten together
there, the sick man being as bright as usual. The wife had stepped back into another room to give her husband
a dose of medicine that the doctor had just prescribed, and when she returned and spoke to him, she noticed that he did not reply. Her fears were confirmed when she took hold of him and summoning other assistance as quickly as she could, everything possible was done to produce artificial respiration, but it was all to no avail,
and it was found that the aged man had passed peacefully away.Mr. Bell was born at Point Pleasant, near Wilmington, on the 17th of September, 1837, and was, therefore, in the 71st year of his age. He had spent nearly all his life in Wilmington, and during all his life had never held but three positions, a striking testimonial to his sterling worth,
both as a man and as a machinist.
His apprenticeship was served with the old Southmade Machine Shop, in operation before the war at the foot of Church street. From this position he went with the old Manchester Railroad shops, across the river from the city, remaining in that service until he went with the old Wilmington &
Weldon shops, now the Atlantic Coast Line. Mr. Bell had been a consistent member of Fifth Street M. E. Church for nearly half a century, and of Stonewall Lodge No. 1 Knights of Pythias, for 33 years. He was one of the few original members of Stonewall Lodge,
who some time ago were presented with veteran jewels of the order as a token of appreciation for their long and faithful membership. Mr. Bell was in every sense of the word a Christian,
possessed a kindly and genial disposition, and was charitable to a fault.
In his family circle, in his church, and in the community, his loss will be keenly felt.The deceased is survived by his devoted wife, three sons and three daughters, viz: Mr. J. J. Bell, of Wilmington; Mr. W. H. Bell, of Shreveport, La.; Mr. C. D. Bell, of Kansas City, Mo.; Mrs. W. F. Newton, of Mrs. Martin Daniels and Mrs. B. F.
Swann, of Wilmington. There are also surviving a large number of grandchildren. The bereaved ones have the sympathy of many friends in their sorrow. The two sons in Shreveport and Kansas City have been telegraphed the news of their father's death, and until they are heard from, the funeral arrangements will not be made.

Mad Runaway Sunday Afternoon.

A horse attached to a cart, the turnout belonging to Mr. John Turner, ran away from Front and Dawson to Castle street and up to Fifth Sunday afternoon. Near Fifth and Castle the horse all but dashed the vehicle into an approaching street car crowded with people. The affair caused some excitement on the car, but the motor-man retained his presence of mind and saved a collision by promptly stopping his car.

DEATH OF MRS. McRAE.

Tribute to Memory of Good Woman
Who Died Here.(Special Star Correspondence.)
Maxton, N. C., April 20.—Mrs. Elizabeth A. McRae, aged 82, who spent most of her life in this community
and was a native of Robeson county,
died on Thursday, April 18th, in Wilmington, where she had been living for the past several years. The remains, accompanied by several members of the family, her pastor, Dr.
Wells, and Mr. H. C. McNair, who went from here, arrived at Maxton at 6:30 P. M. on Friday, and, agreeable to the request of the deceased,
were carried to the Presbyterian Church for the night.This morning the corpse, followed by a long procession of people from this vicinity, was taken to Centre Church, at Floral College, where the obsequies were performed, and the services conducted by Dr. H. G. Hill, her old pastor of whom she was very fond, assisted by Dr. Wells, of Wilmington. The grand old minister preached a splendid sermon over her,
who, for many years was one of the most beloved of his flock, his text, which was considered most appropriate, being "She hath done what she could." This scriptural quotation, which was spoken of Mary of Bethany, was applied by the eloquent divine to Mrs. McRae, and said to be the "highest encomium" that could be pronounced for anyone. No other epitaph, he said, would he rather have upon his own monument.In the passing away of this remarkable woman, this community loses one of its former prominent figures, a human landmark, so to speak. For many years she was especially active in educational, social and religious circles, and was known and loved of all men, from the lowest to the highest. Though dead, she will not be forgotten, for her works will live after her. She was noted for her devotion to religious causes, and though a suffering invalid for several years
prior to her death, her Christian zeal never wavered, and it is said that she never lost interest in her former work, even while prostrate upon her bed.Mrs. "Argyle" McRae, as she was familiarily called, will live not only in the hearts of her friends, but she leaves material memorials to her name in the fact that she organized the first Missionary Union in Fayetteville Presbytery, and was instrumental in promoting and establishing the Lees-McRae Institute in western North Carolina. She possessed the true missionary spirit, as was shown,
when, a lady of culture and refinement,
she, in her younger days, taught school
in the remotest districts of the mountains in this State, not for gain, but for charity and philanthropy.Among other unusual experiences, a story is told of how she once fell from an ox-cart in ascending a steep mountain to her work. Notwithstanding many privations and hardships,
she persevered in her work and her name will live long among the grateful mountaineers of the locality in which she lived and taught. Employment in such avocations, however, was not her only environment, for, as Dr.
Hill said today, she was "as much at home in a palace as in a hovel." Hers was a noble life of noble works.

ALMOST ASPHYXIATED.

Mr. W. C. Crow Had Narrow Escape
at Home Sunday Morning.Mr. William C. Crow, of Crow & Taylor, grocers on Market street, had a narrow escape from asphyxiation at his home, No. 304 South Second street, Sunday morning, the circumstances having been most unusual. Mr. Crow had gone in the bath room and made use of an instantaneous gas heater in preparing his bath for a morning plunge. His father had just preceded him and either because there was no vent in the ceiling of the room or because there was some disarrange-ment of the fixture, the fuel gas collected in the bathtub supply and overcame Mr. Crow, who afterwards remembered relapsing into unconsciousness a few minutes after the heater
was shut off.His prolonged absence in the bath room was noted by his brother, Mr.
George D. Crow, about half an hour afterwards and going to the room Mr.
George Crow called to him. Receiving no reply to repeated calls, Mr. Crow burst the door in and found the man lying in a recumbent position in the tub, the water still running and just up to his mouth and nostrils. He was perfectly unconscious and gasping for breath. Had the delay in finding him been a few minutes longer
the result would have been fatal,
either from asphyxiation or drowning.
Mr. Crow was quickly carried into the fresh atmosphere, where temporary restoratives were resorted to until physicians could arrive, when he was revived with no apparent ill effects,
though he was confined to his room for the day. Mr. Crow was able to be about his business as usual yesterday, seemingly no worse for his most unpleasant experience. His escape was very narrow, to say the least of it.

HOWLAND IS BOUND OVER.

Man Charged With Shooting Mr. Farrow Before the Mayor.Fred Howland, white, charged with shooting Mr. N. E. Farrow through the wrist and thigh soon after being ejected from the latter's store at Seventh and Chestnut streets last Wednesday night, was arraigned before Mayor Waddell yesterday at noon in the police court on the double charge of an assault with a deadly weapon and carrying a concealed weapon. Mr. Farrow was present to prosecute the case and had several witnesses, but Herbert McClammy, Esq., attorney for Howland, waived examination and the Mayor fixed bond at $200 in both cases for the defendant's appearance at the July term of the higher court. Mr.
McClammy asked that the prisoner be not sent over to the county jail until after noon as he could arrange bond
more easily from the station house.
Howland, however, had not given bond
up to last night and was still locked up.Mr. Farrow stated in court that his wounds were still giving him trouble.
The ball in his thigh has not yet been extracted. Dr. J. B. Cranmer is attending him since he left the hospital.
He is able to walk, however, with the assistance of a cane.Other cases in the police court yesterday were trifling, there having been several continuances of the same kind until today.

KILLED WIFE AND PARAMOUR.

Fifty-Three Jurors Believed Husband Was Justified.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)
St. Louis, April 22.—Fifty-three men out of a venire of 100 summoned for the trial of Policeman Michael J. McNamara charged with killing his wife and John J. Brophy, her paramour, on August 23, 1906, were excused to-day by Circuit Judge Sale after they had sworn they believed in the "unwritten law." Each of the 53 said he would refuse to vote for conviction if the "unwritten law" was pleaded in McNamara's defense.

It is reported that Haiti wants to borrow a warship, so she can be represented in the naval display at Jamestown. If Haiti had been putting her money in a savings bank, instead of spending it in revolutions, she might have been able to have bought one of the Wilmington fleet of steamers that had to be sold to make way for larger ones. Moral: Save your money and you can buy instead of borrow.

THE SALE OF A TITLE

(Original.)

There are many strange customs in Russia. Among the strangest is one wherein a man of noble birth for a consideration will marry a woman and give her his name and her freedom at the same time, leaving her at the moment they are pronounced man and wife.

One winter's day in St. Petersburg the beauty and fashion of the capital were skating on the Neva. Among the throng were two ladies skating together. A tall, handsome man of aristocratic mien was regarding one of them with admiring glances as they skated by him and asked a friend who she was.

"I was told just now," replied the friend, "that one of them was Miss Mikhailoff, the daughter of one of the new civil appointees, but I am not sure which one she is. I think she is the brunette."

Later the man who was interested noticed the lady he had admired—the brunette—skating alone. She tripped and fell. Daring toward her, he raised her. She was not hurt, but he was loath to leave her.

"Permit me to introduce myself," he said. "I am Count Akadyevitch."

"Count Akadyevitch, the emperor's aid-de-camp, needs no introduction."

"I have been sufficiently interested in you to inquire your name, Miss Mikhailoff."

The lady turned her eyes upon the count, but said nothing.

Count Akadyevitch received permission to call on the lady that evening.

She left the city next day, but not before inviting him to visit her at her home in Kostroma. The invitation was accepted punctually on the day it was given for. The count found that his new acquaintance, with whom he had fallen desperately in love—a case of love at first sight—lived a sort of queen among her tenants. It was "Miss Mikhailoff, will you have this?" or "Miss Mikhailoff, will you have that?" every one being punctilious in addressing her by name when speaking to her.

From the first the count received special encouragement. A week passed, and when he proposed to return his intention was gently opposed. Two more weeks he remained, and yet the lady did not signify a wish that he should go. Nevertheless the count was melancholy. A secret seemed to be gnawing at his heart. The more he became interested in the lady the more depressed he became. Finally she asked him the cause.

"I dare not tell you," he said. "You will despise me."

"Indeed!" replied the lady. "I insist. Have I been unwise in trusting you on so short an acquaintance?"

The count was silent for a time, during which it was evident his sufferings were great. At last he said:

"I was forced some years ago to do a thing I am greatly ashamed of and which now stands in the way of a possible happiness. When I came into my title and estate the latter was incumbered with debt. Twenty thousand rubles were necessary to clear it. I was about to lose it when I received through a medium an offer of the amount for my name by a woman who wished to be noble. I consented on condition that the marriage should take place by proxy. The condition was accepted, and I was married. I am wedded, but I have never met my wife."

The count bowed his head.

"You are no more to blame than the woman who bought your name."

"Leaving blame out of the question, I am prevented from yielding to the dictates of my heart. I cannot even honorably tell you that I love you."

Notwithstanding the confession of the sale, the confession of love evidently was a delight to the lady. A rose color appeared at her throat and spread rapidly over her face. Presently she spoke again:

"I, too, have a confession to make. I am not Miss Mikhailoff."

"You're not Miss Mikhailoff?"

"No. You were mistaken in my name when you first met me, and I permitted you to remain mistaken. Miss Mikhailoff was a friend who skated with me. Before your arrival here I gave instructions that every one should address me when you were present as Miss Mikhailoff."

"And your real name is?"

"I have more to confess. When I came into these estates every one told me that I should marry a noble. After waiting a long while to meet one that I could love, having failed, I resolved to buy a title in the same manner as you sold yours."

"You—you bought a title by marriage?"

"I did. I heard of a man who needed money. I gave it for his name. Strange to say, I was married, as you were, by proxy."

"The barriers that keep us apart are double," moaned the count.

"What is marriage? A ceremony. Did not you and did not I go through this ceremony for a consideration? Why should such a ceremony be necessary to our union?"

The count was silent for a moment and then said, with a voice full of grief:

"No, I love you too well to degrade you."

A new evidence of happiness appeared in her face, especially on her lips, on which was a happy smile.

"You have not asked me my real name," she said.

"I ask it now."

"I am the Countess Akadyevitch."

ELINOR T. BOYD.

The Fog Guide.

(Original.)

Having been commissioned by a publishing house to write a life of one of England's great political leaders, I went to London and took apartments where I would be nearest the reference libraries I should need to consult. One day while I was on the street the city was suddenly enveloped in a fog. It was so dense that I could not see my hand held eighteen inches from my face. I could hear the shouts of the drivers in the street, who at once began to creep along and even at this pace came into frequent collision. I heard footfalls about me, and now and again some one, doubtless more used to fogs and not to be stopped by them, brushed against me. Suddenly I felt a light touch on the arm, and a hand slid down it and grasped mine.

"Show you the way, sir?"

I caught at the offer eagerly, for there was confidence in the man's tone.

"Get me out of this," I said, "and I will pay you well." Then I gave him my street and number.

He moved off at a pace that astonished me. How he dared proceed at what on a clear day I would have considered an ordinary gait I could not imagine. Now and again above the confusion of noises I heard a tapping as of some one hitting the pavement with a stick. Strange to say, we jostled no one, and no one jostled us, but I could feel my guide pull or push me to one side or the other in order to avoid collision.

"Are you a stranger in London, sir?" he asked.

"Yes, an American."

"An American? Then I am conducting a fellow countryman?"

"Indeed! How came you to be a fog conductor in London?"

"I came here to find a better literary field than ours in America."

"And got stranded?"

"Yes."

"I am a literary man myself and am here now doing literary work, but I have an order."

"You're fortunate. I had no orders. I had some success at first, but my wife sickened and died, and my daughter became a confirmed invalid. This reduced me to working on potboilers, and at last—"

"Even they would not boil the pot?"

"They did till my daughter failed me as an amanuensis."

At this moment, whether the man's mind was taken from his present work by his misfortunes or through carelessness, we were nearly knocked down by some one proceeding more rapidly than was safe. After this we ceased our conversation. As to our location, I had no knowledge of it whatever, but my guide told me he knew exactly where we were. In about an hour from our starting he led me up to a door, which he opened, and we stood in the hall of a tenement house.

"This is not my lodging house," I said sharply, fearful that I had been tricked.

"Forgive me," said the man, who I could now see was intellectual looking, but very shabby; "I live here. I have brought you to my home to show you what can happen to an American who trusts himself on the literary sea of London." He opened a door and took me into a room, or, rather, two rooms communicating. In one of them on a couch lay a girl with the flaring eyes and hectic cheek of a consumptive.

"I would offer you some refreshments," said the man, "but there is not a crust of bread here. We have neither fuel nor lights, and my poor daughter, far from having the delicacies she needs, has not even ordinary food."

I am taking no credit to myself in saying that I relieved their distress. It would be a flinty heart that could refuse a fellow countryman in a strange land. While I was listening to a more detailed story of their lives a ray of sunlight came streaming in at the window, and, taking a memorandum of their location, I left them.

One day the father appeared at my apartments to tell me that his daughter had but a short time to live and desired to thank me in person for what I had done for them. I promised to be there the same afternoon. I expected a melancholy scene and preferred to get through my day's work before entering upon what would interfere with that condition of mind necessary to mental effort.

During the afternoon I went to their rooms. They were alone together, the father being the sole minister to his daughter's comfort. The remains of some delicacies I had sent a few days before were on a table. The invalid was resting in a steam chair, and I approached her with a sad heart.

I can never forget the look of gratitude that accompanied the girl's words. Only an exile who had been succored by one from her native land could have felt as she felt. When I took my departure I asked her father, who spoke only by a pressure of the hand, to let me know more of his daughter's condition.

The next day I received word from him that she was dead. I went immediately to the old man to cheer him by the announcement that I had made arrangements for his return to America. On leaving him I laid some bank notes on the table and called his attention to them. He went to the table and felt over it till he touched them.

He was stone blind.

When I finished my labors, which I did soon after his daughter's death, I took him with me to America. There I secured some literary work for him to do.

SILVIA LEWIS BALDWIN.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE

—Kinston, N. C., April 20: The Board of Aldermen passed an ordinance this afternoon authorizing an election June 3d, on the question of issuing bonds not exceeding thirty-five thousand dollars to secure the location of the Eastern Carolina Teachers' Training School, established by the last General Assembly. Kinston is making every effort to secure the location of this school here.

—Scotland Neck, April 20: The Scotland Neck Oil and Ginning Company closed down this week, for the season, and gave to their employees a fine dinner of barbecue and other good things. Besides the employees of the mill there were a number of invited guests, the whole number at the dinner being about 75 persons. This is the close of the second season of the company, and it has been quite successful. Appreciation and confidence between employers and employees was shown in the dinner given.

—At Enfield last week the Halifax branch of the Southern Cotton Association held an enthusiastic meeting. President C. C. Moore, of the Charlotte, and Hon. E. D. Smith, of South Carolina, were present. Mr. Smith made a great speech in defence of the Southern cotton farmer, and urged the farmers to take stock in the proposed million dollar company for the protection of the price of cotton. About 270 shares were taken, a local committee was appointed and committees at all the cotton markets in the county will be appointed to raise $125,000.

—Spray, April 21: Mrs. J. Ellen Foster, a special agent of one of the departments at Washington by direction of the President, to study conditions surrounding the labor of women and children in the United States, spent today in Spray. She was astonished at the extent of the development here, and was especially surprised at the short time in which it had been accomplished. Mrs. Foster visited several of the mills and the Leaksville-Spray Institute. Mr. J. A. Beam, principal, invited Mrs. Foster to make an address to the young ladies of the girls' department. This she did to the great satisfaction of her audience. Mrs. Foster went from here to Greensboro, where by invitation, she will address the students of the Methodist Female College there on missionary work. She will also visit the State Normal and Industrial College to see something of the work the State is doing for industrial training of young women.

—Charlotte, April 20: The North Carolina branch of the Society of the Cincinnati was entertained this evening at a reception at the home of Mr. Brevard McDowell, this function closing the convention which began its sessions yesterday in the city. New officers of the society are: Hon. William G. Lamb, president; John C. Davis, vice president; Marshall Delancey Haywood, assistant secretary; Walter D. Carstaphen, treasurer; Col. Benjamin Cameron, assistant treasurer, and the Rt. Rev. Joseph Blount Cheshire, chaplain. Twelve new members were elected, as follows: Stephen C. Bragg, Washington, N. C.; Thomas Callender, Nashville, Tenn.; William U. Garrard, Savannah, Ga.; John I. Kane, New York; Dr. William Mecklenburg Bolk, New York; B. D. Anders, Birmingham; Arthur O. Slaughter, Chicago; J. D. Huffman, Jr., Wake Forest; Dr. John I. Middleton, New York; Joshua N. Steed, Taylorsville, N. C.; W. C. Whitthorne, Columbia, Tenn. and Paul Cameron Graham. The next meeting of the society of the Cincinnati will probably be held in Raleigh on the anniversary of Washington's birthday, February 22, 1908. The members nearly all favored the capital city.

—Statesville, April 20: A very tragic and distressing death occurred here this morning about 10 o'clock, when H. C. Miller died at the Sanatorium from the effects of injuries received a short while before. The accident occurred at the City Roller Mill, which was owned and operated by himself and his brother, R. A. Miller. About 9:25 o'clock the fireman at the mill, who was in the engine room, heard a scream in the main part of the building and when he answered the call for help he saw Mr. Miller entangled in the machinery which was splattering blood right and left. The fireman rushed back to the engine and shut it down, in the mean time calling for help. A number of people were near, and Kerr Miller, a brother, was driving along in his buggy. The injured man was taken from the machine, placed in the buggy and hurried to the hospital. He died a few minutes after reaching there. His arms and head were terribly mangled, and he never regained consciousness. It is supposed that he was trying to adjust a bolt, when his arm became entangled in the machinery. Mr. Miller was about 28 years old, and was one of Statesville's most promising business men. He was married only last Spring, and his young wife, who was Miss Carrie Shelton, is prostrated with grief.

THE COTTON MARKET.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

New York, April 22.—The cotton market was rather less active today
and fluctuations were narrow and irregular, with the close steady at a net decline of 3 to 8 points. Sales for the day were estimated at 150,000 bales. The opening was steady at a decline of 3 to 6 points in response to lower Liverpool cables and a rather better weather may than had been looked for, owing to further rains in the southwest. But offerings were light, and there was a sharp demand
by the near months on prices rallied to within a point or two of Saturday's close, soon after the opening. Later the market sagged off in the absence of a broadening demand, but May held a premium of about 2 to 3 points over July, and after sagging off to about the opening figures, prices held pretty steady during the afternoon.
The close was at practically the lowest point of the session under scattering liquidation, or realizing by buyers of last week. The decline in Liverpool futures was attributed to American selling, which was believed to be undoing straddles and the buying of May early was credited to the same account. The first May notice day comes on Friday, and the strength of that position suggests that the concentrated long interest is planning to take up all cotton tendered. The New Orleans estimated for tomorrow was heavy, but exports for the day were nearly 30,000 bales heavier than the port receipts, frost was again predicted, and it is said re-planting would be necessary in Mississippi. The Southern spot was unchanged to 1-8.
Spot cotton, steady; middling uplands, 11.20; middling Gulf, 11.45;
sales, 1,200.

DRY GOODS MARKET.

By Wire to The Morning Star.
New York, April 22.—The dry goods
market opened firm but quiet. A fur-demand is reported for wide print-cloths for next year's delivery and Southern mills are making contracts

quite freely. Men's wear goods continue slow. The retail and jobbing trade was helped by the advent of warmer weather.

—Burlington, April 21: Yesterday afternoon while driving by the court house in Graham, Charles Sullivan, of Burlington, was struck on the head
by a rock which came from the direction of the dispensary and was rendered unconscious. Mr. Sullivan's injury, though apparently serious, proved to be not dangerous. Tom Johnson, a negro, who threw the rock,
and broke for liberty, and who was later captured by Policeman Longest,
of Graham, and confined in jail, it was learned later, had thrown the rock at another party, and by accident Sullivan was hit. The negro is his fight dropped a gun of the latest pattern, and upon his capture he was found in possession of a razor. After his capture it was found that a charge against him for the skillful use of the razor in an attack which occurred in Graham Friday, was pending. Such characters usually get the limit of the law in Alamance, and a long term of service on the county roads, no doubt, awaits his trial.

SECOND TRIAL OF HARRY THAW

Movements That Indicate That
There Will Be Another
Lunacy Trial.

HIS ATTORNEYS AT ASYLUM

Said, However, to Be Paying Social
Visit to Superintendent—District
Attorney Jerome Won't Consent
to Change of Venue.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)
Binghamton, N. Y., April 22.—Attorneys Delphin M. Delmas and W. H. McPike, of the counsel for Harry K. Thaw, are in the city, the guests of Dr. Charles G. Wagner, superintendent of the State Hospital, who was a prominent witness for the defense in the Thaw trial. It is believed that Mr. Delmas' coming is a preliminary step to bring Thaw here for a second trial. The attorneys had a conference with Justice George F. Lyon while here.

Probably Idle Rumor.

New York, April 22.—Clifford W. Hartridge, of counsel for Harry K. Thaw, said today that so far as he knew no movement was contemplated looking toward hearing the second Thaw trial at Binghamton. He expressed the opinion that Thaw's second trial, like the first, would be held in New York City. Mr. Hartridge interpreted the visit to Binghamton of Attorneys Delmas and McPike as a social call upon Superintendent Wagner of the State Hospital there.

Assistant District Attorney Garvan, who is temporarily directing the Thaw case, said he believed there was no foundation for the suggestion that Thaw would be tried at Binghamton. He explained that it was perfectly possible to try Thaw outside of New York City under an agreement to change the venue, but pointed out that to accomplish this it was necessary to secure permissive order from a court in this city. He stated that if Thaw's attorneys were planning to change Thaw to the Binghamton jurisdiction, the arrangement was unknown to the district attorney's office.

District Attorney William Travers Jerome stated tonight that he had no intention of either asking for or consenting to a change of venue for the next trial of Harry K. Thaw.

BENEDICT GIMBEL DEAD.

Philadelphia Millionaire Died from Self-Inflicted Wounds.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)
New York, April 22.—Benedict Gimbel, the wealthy Philadelphia merchant, who cut his throat with a razor with broken glass in a hotel in Hoboken soon after he had been arrested on serious charges in this city, died in St. Mary's hospital, Hoboken, early today.

Mr. Gimbel's evident desire to die, even after the arrival of the members of his family who vainly did their best to encourage him to live and fight for his liberty, operated greatly to the disadvantage of the doctors who were striving to save his life. Mrs. Gimbel had rooms at the hospital, where she could be called at a moment's notice, and was almost constantly at his bedside endeavoring to overcome his desire to be relieved of his troubles by death. Members of the family had strong hopes that, if Mr. Gimbel recovered, the charges against him could be overcome by the plea of insanity and they had engaged Mr. Shields, of Philadelphia, to assist Daniel O'Reilly, of this city, as counsel to fight the case. They had planned to send Mr. Gimbel to an asylum if they were successful in court.

It became evident before midnight that Gimbel could not live unless heroic treatment was attempted. Oxygen was administered to him all yesterday afternoon and late into the night. He failed to respond to this treatment, and Charles Gimbel then suggested that, as a last resort, his blood be infused into the veins of his brother.

However, it is said that Gimbel did not revive sufficiently to test the experiment. Early this morning he became unconscious and expired. The body has been sent to Philadelphia.

THREE MEN WERE DROWNED.

Schooner Capsized in Delaware River
While They Were in Cabin.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)
Chester, Pa., April 22.—Three persons were drowned today in the Delaware river a few miles below this city, by the capsizing of the schooner Eben. The drowned men were Archibald McEride, George Edger and Edward Murphy, all of Philadelphia. Six other persons who were on the schooner when it capsized were rescued. The three men who lost their lives were in the cabin at the time of the accident, and were unable to escape on account of the rushing water. The other members of the crew who were on deck were picked up by a passing vessel and brought to this city.

L. & N. TUNNEL DAMAGED.

Cave-In Stopped Fire Resulting From a Collision.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)
Knoxville, Tenn., April 22.—A portion of the Copper Ridge tunnel, on the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, 17 miles north of this city, caved in today. The cave-in smothered a fire which had been burning since yesterday, when a rear-end freight collision occurred in the tunnel. Two brakemen were injured. It is estimated that 1,000 feet of the tunnel is damaged by fire burning the wood lining and supports, and by the cave-in caused by the supports falling. A locomotive, caboose and three coal cars were consumed. The tunnel may be closed to traffic for several weeks.

SQUARE DEAL FOR RAILROADS

President Finley of Southern Rail way Makes Plea at Memphis Banquet.

LEGISLATION THAT HURTS

Interests of Railways and People Are Identical and Measures Which Cripple Transportation Development Injure Public.

Memphis, Tenn., April 22.—W. W. Finley, president of the Southern Railway Company, made an address tonight at a banquet given in honor of himself and other prominent railroad men by John H. Watkins, the newly elected president of the Memphis Railroad Terminal Association. Mr. Watkins invited 100 representatives business men to meet his guests. Among the visitors present at the banquet were President Finley, Colonel E. L. Russell, vice-president of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad; F. H. Britton, vice-president and general manager of the St. Louis & Southwestern Railroad, and Governor R. M. Patterson.

Declaring that the interests of a railway and the people depending upon it for transportation are identical, President W. W. Finley, as one of the principal speakers at the banquet, made a strong plea for fair treatment towards the railroads of the country on the part of the public. All that the railways asked, he said, was the assurance of perfect liberty to develop their business under the protection of just and fair laws. Contending that the future growth of the South depended, in large measure, on the attitude of "Southern communities toward railway development," he said: "I cannot conceive that the people of any locality should deliberately favor a policy that would restrict investments, for business men will not put their money in any locality unless they are assured that its transportation agencies are strong and prosperous enough to expand their service with the growth of business. Since the construction of railways first began they have ever been the forerunners of investments. In this day, in localities already supplied with railways, further investments depend on assurance of the adequacy of railway facilities. For these reasons Southern industrial developments must go hand in hand in the future as they have in the past. Stifle or restrict railway development in any section and the inevitable result will be to stifle or restrict all industrial progress and material advancement in that section."

Mr. Finley said that if the railroads of the South are to increase their efficiency as transportation agencies and as allies of Southern communities for Southern development, they must spend large sums of money within the next few years. He said that the vital question confronting the railways and the Southern people was as to how the money for this purpose was to be obtained. He pointed out the utter inadequacy of railway income to provide funds for betterments and extensions, showing that if every dollar of the net income of the Southern Railway from its organization had been used for this purpose it would have amounted to only about $3,600 per mile, whereas the road has actually spent, or contracted to spend, for capitalized betterments and improvements, more than $96,000,000, or within a fraction of $14,000 per mile on its present mileage. He showed that adequate funds could be obtained only by borrowing, and that every attack on the earning power of a railway through legislation reducing arbitrarily its charges or imposing onerous and restrictive conditions on its operation, is an attack on its ability to maintain and improve its service and reacts by those it is intended to the railway and the public.

Referring to the proposition to reduce passenger fares in the Southern States as an illustration of the character of legislation that cripples the ability of a railway to perform service and improve its facilities, Mr. Finley pointed out that passenger rates that might be profitable in States with dense population and heavy traffic passenger traffic, like Massachusetts, New York or Ohio, would be impossible in States like Tennessee and Mississippi, where the population is so sparse that heavy traffic cannot be built up at any rates. He contended that all laws imposing penalties on railways for failure to perform impossible service were inimical both to the railway and the public.

In conclusion, President Finley said the South needs urgently and speedily a great expansion of its transportation facilities. The railroads are willing and anxious to supply these facilities, he said, if given fair play and a square deal.

ENGLISH LORD MUST HANG.

Supreme Court of United States Dismisses Appeal.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)
Washington, April 22.—In an opinion by Chief Justice Fuller, the Supreme Court of the United States today dismissed the criminal case of Frederick Seymour, alias "Lord" Barrington, under sentence of death in St. Louis on the charge of murdering James P. McCann in the outskirts of that city in June, 1903, in effect affirming the decision of the Supreme Court of Missouri, and thus sustaining the verdict of guilty. The case has attracted much attention, largely because of Barrington's pretense of bearing an English title under which, shortly before the tragedy with which his name is connected, he married a young lady of good family residing in Kansas City.

PITIFUL CRY OF UNEMPLOYED

Thousand of Skilled Workmen Discharged From British Arsenal at Woolwich.

HAD TO CUT EXPENSES

Men marched to House of Parliament
and Protested Against Hardship—Order to Retrench Inexorable.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)
London, April 22.—The "cry of the unemployed" was noised in London again tonight, when several thousand skilled workmen, who had been discharged from Woolwich arsenal as an outcome of War Secretary Haldane's scheme of reducing military expenses, marched with band and banners the long distance from Woolwich to the House of Commons to impress their grievances upon the government. The complaints of the men are far-reaching, representing not only loss of employment, but the wiping out of their savings invested in little properties located in the historical and heretofore prosperous town of Woolwich.

A number of printers and other tradesmen, laborers and citizens joined the procession, which was further augmented by a strong body of workers from the army clothing factory at Pimlico. The entire eight miles of march was thickly lined with spectators. The procession, which was perfectly orderly, was halted at St. George's Circle, one mile from the Houses of Parliament, and from here a deputation of picked men proceeded to the House of Commons, to lay the grievances of themselves and their comrades before Premier, Campbell-Bannerman.

The Premier received the deputation in a private room, War Secretary Haldane and Baron Tweedmouth, first Lord of the Admiralty, being present. William Crooks, member of the House of Parliament for Woolwich, introduced the deputation, and the men explained their grievances. The Premier made a sympathetic reply, and assured the men of the government's anxiety that these inevitable discharges should entail as little hardship as possible.

Secretary Haldane then explained the necessity of the reduction in military expenditure and the need of bringing things down from the inflated position which obtained during the late war. He said there must be even further reductions, but promised that every scrap of work possible would be given to Woolwich, and the deputation withdrew.

ROOSEVELT'S SUMMER REST.

Leaves Washington July 12th—Some of His Engagements.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)
Washington, April 22.—President Roosevelt will leave Washington for his Summer home at Oyster Bay on July 12. This is much earlier than has been the practice of the President to leave for the Summer, but public business is in such shape there is no reason why the date should be later.

Secretary Loeb today said that no speeches were to be made by the President after he leaves Washington until he goes to Canton for the unveiling of the McKinley monument, September 30th. From Canton the President will return to Washington for the Fall and Winter season.

The President is to make two speeches on Georgia Day at the Jamestown Exposition on June 10th. One of these is to be at the opening of the Georgia building, and the other before the National Editorial Association. He will reach Washington on the 11th from Jamestown, and on the following morning go to Oyster Bay. Herbert Parsons, head of the New York county Republican organization, was at the White House today, and had a talk with the President. Mr. Parsons said the county organization was for Governor Hughes, and his legislative programme was giving them its support.
